Editorial

Ladies and Gentlemen,

The International LEARNTEC Forum (ILF) takes place for the third time and is now firmly established as a pre-conference to LEARNTEC. This year's conference follows the main topic: "No limits to learning" and may be considered as a contribution to the UN World Decade "Education for Sustainable Development".

The proclamation of the UN World Decade is a direct result of the World Summit on Sustainable Development in Johannesburg 2002. At this summit, institutions of state and civil law concluded that education has to be much more the focus for a sustainable development of the world society. It is the target of the world decade which starts in 2005 and lasts until 2014 to foster education for a sustainable development on a national and international basis.

At the International LEARNTEC Forum (ILF) – which has developed from the close cooperation with the UNESCO – numerous German and international experts in their contributions and presentations offer an overview of the opportunities of digital media in the process of worldwide knowledge transfer. Topic related workshops with selected examples of practical experiences complete these overview presentations.

I wish all participants of the International LEARNTEC Forum (ILF) fruitful impulses, knowledgeable conversations as well as an enjoyable stay in Karlsruhe. Make sure you do not fail to visit the LEARNTEC conference with its accompanying trade fair.

Prof. Dr. Winfried Sommer
(Scientific Director)
